- Health inspections in Wyandotte county and it seems they are focusing on the Legends, and not the inner city. There is nowhere to take the kids, we would like more parks that are safe, and the kids need more programs, we have a poor boy and girls club.

• How other people outside of Wyandotte County see /think of us
• How the city has allowed downtown to deteriorate
• How the city is ran and we need more policemen
• I am a senior & in need of retail, grocery & movies nearby
• I am too far from the Legends
• I do not feel safe in KCK.
• I do not like that mid-town (which is the Indian Springs area) is being neglected from developing.
  We need stores and restaurants between 38th street and 65th street. I want big stores like Walmart, Target, Sam's Club, Costco, etc.
• I do not like the reputation Wyandotte County has
• I don't like the perception that KCK and Wyandotte County has
• I hear gunshots every night, police are under funded
• I like least that there are not enough jobs
• I really love my city
• I think there is too much emphasis on fixing our problems with outside help, spending massive amounts of taxpayer money on bringing in big corporations that keep many of their profits and pay their employees poorly (Wal-Mart, Cabala’s, most chain stores at Legends) rather than making use of existing resources in the community and expanding avenues for success of communities in Wyandotte Co. In areas where there are massive unemployment rates (Quindaro area for example) it is a huge resource to have so many able-bodied adults. However, because of lack/loss of skills and opportunities many are not easily or immediately insert-able into jobs without support, and due to lack of expendable incomes, businesses don't build in those areas or cater to those people, perpetuating the cycle. There are people with good ideas, and who are very capable that could use support in succeeding. A stronger focus on developing locally owned and operated businesses in KCK and finding ways to make use of the skills, talents, time, and resources of the community itself rather than waiting around to be saved by some big corporations. Corporations get big because they are net gainers of wealth, not because they are net community spenders. Paying 8/hr. And taking all the money from retail sales and sending off to investors and headquarters in other states does not help our economy be robust and hearty. If we have empty buildings, unemployed workers, and have services going unperformed, then we are failing. We act as if money is the major constraint-, money is made up, it is made in excel spreadsheets and on printing presses. The real constraint for a society's productive capacity is the available workforce, real resources, and usable land/buildings. There are options for developing the community within without waiting for mega millionaires to invest in our community; there are many successful community development strategies that focus on using assets in even the most depressed and impoverished areas of the world that have been successful. Community/complimentary currency programs can help with the liquidity problem. A local credit union focused on entrepreneurial development. Finding ways for neighbors to communicate about needs, and offer their resources and energies towards common goals. That will be economic development- not more 8/hr. Jobs.

- I wish it was cleaner
- I wish people would be better about not throwing their trash on the streets. Not just paper, but sometimes large items (mattresses, chairs, boxes, etc.). There is no excuse for this considering the great trash service we get! I do worry about the crime & drugs, those things can happen everywhere, anymore. I also wish there were more organized sporting programs for our young people.
- I wish there was more retail stores like used to be on Minnesota Ave.
- I wish we had better schools. And less abandoned houses and buildings. We should use old buildings instead of building new ones. And people who abandon homes should be responsible for their demolition. We should get more utility options, BPU is a fraud.
- If I wasn't born here I would never live here, need a dog leash law
- Illegal drug related murders
- Illegal immigration
- Illegal Mexicans & druggies
- Image of schools & homes in the area are not maintained
- Image that others have of Wyandotte County/KCK; always negative
- Image, code enforcement
- Image, good things don't get publicized, if you talk about how others are doing good/great things then more people would be inclined to “join the crowd” and do good things themselves.

- License bureau: in my 30 years in Wyandotte County I have had one positive interaction with the license bureau employees. In my opinion, these are the most rude and unfriendly people I have met, and should not be paid with my tax dollars. We now go to Johnson County when possible, and we are actually treated respectfully. Animal control: for the first time in 30 years in Wyandotte County, we had to deal with animal control. In my opinion, the officers there were very arrogant and rude. They took an already stressful situation and made it much worse. My wife left in tears after being treated incredibly rudely by animal control officers. I am furious that my tax dollars are used to pay these people to harass and belittle my family!

• Some unkempt neighborhoods
• South end of KCK and Wyandotte County is forgotten in regards to city/county services and growth. Economic development has grown in other areas and the south end is neglected.

• That people are stuck in the past and keep relieving old grievances instead of being optimistic about our young people and the future.
• That there's nothing for the youth to do
• That they city charges you fees to have a garage sale
• The activity of drugs use and sale in the neighborhoods
• The amount of high paying jobs
• The amount of property tax I have to pay
• The amount of property taxes we pay on our house
• The amount of taxes we pay. They are the highest in the state. You need to give incentives to the residence instead of the companies that come to Kansas City. Once the incentives stop, they tend to leave. I have seen this too many times. The residents end up paying more and more, for less and less.
• The animal control downright sucks
• The area between Central & State Ave. (10th St.)
• The attitude that we are second class citizens and aren't happy with their community. Johnson County is the promise land.
• The awful public schools & DMV
• The bad part of KCK aka the hood
• The bad press we get from others
• The bad smells from the sewer (streets)
• The BPU bill-service with water charges
The city does not take care of their properties. Lights on I-70 bike trail are never running so I cannot feel safe walking in the evening or near sundown. The city does not clean litter or debris from parks and seldom mows its vacant lots in the city land bank or parks. There is little financial help for homeowners or potential homeowners to improve their own properties or purchase distressed properties and repair/maintain them as homes. This magnifies both the homeless/under-sheltered problem and vacant/derelict structure problem. The zoning board appears to be at odds with homeowners seeking to improve their home, rather than working with them to reach compromises and having a common goal to improve city live-ability. Property taxes are exaggeratedly high in Wyandotte compared to Johnson County thus there is no incentive for would-be homeowners to consider KCK given the option. In sum, the city government should have as much of a sense of community and desire to improve livable conditions of Wyandotte as its residents. We have a common goal, we need to be on the same page.

• The lack of street maintenance
• The law enforcement needs to improve
• The location of the courthouse
• The negative perception often portrayed by media
• The negative perception of local media/neighborhood counties
• The number of houses/buildings that are in really bad shape
• The older people who fill up all the community and neighborhood group meetings and do not allow younger people to express ideas. Listening to 60 minutes of all the bad things that happened in the past (before the younger people were born) is keeping us from moving forward. I know many young people (under 45) who'd like to be more involved but are turned off by the neighborhood group meetings. We need to forge a new path and not try to make Wyandotte County the JOCO of 30 years ago.
• The out of control drugs & drug houses

• Too high on taxes, snow removal needs to be better
• Too many city regulations and fees
• Too many Hispanic business on central ave
• Too many illegals
• Too many social giveaways programs, too many on welfare
• Too many wild cats in my neighborhood. I use my own money to take them in and spay and neuter them because animal control will just take them and kill them. Wants animal control to do a program where they trap them, fix them, and release them. Does not agree with the pit bull laws.

- We do not have park rangers in parks anymore
- We don't have cable companies anymore, we miss united cas com
- We get summoned for jury duty too often
- We need a public swimming pool in the western corridor. Wyandotte County sports do not care about the safety of children or spectators. Some stands have net some don’t. Many children have been hit by balls and when brought to the management attention I was told it is the risk of the sport. If the netting is not beneficial and a safety feature why is there netting covering portions of the stands. We need youth rec areas that prioritize the safety of the citizens of Wyandotte county.
