NOVEMBER IS NATIONAL CAREGIVER MONTH

Since caregiving can be one of the most difficult jobs for anyone giving around-the-clock care. Little rest, possible stressful emotional situations and often times, inadequate compensation. Since the inception of the Proclamation naming November National Caregiver Month in 1997, the mission is to raise awareness for caregivers and to improve their overall life and well-being.

Even the most loving and patient caregivers will become tired and need to recharge in order to avoid emotional or psychological burnout as a result of stress and overwork.

Below are ten tips for family caregivers:

1) Seek support from other caregivers, you’re not alone.
2) Take care of your own health so that you can be strong enough to take care of your loved one.
3) Accept offers of help and suggest specific things people can do to help you.
4) Learn how to communicate effectively with doctors.
5) Caregiving is hard work, so take breaks as often as possible.
6) Watch out for signs of depression and don’t delay getting professional help when you need it.
7) Be open to new technologies that can help you care for your loved one.
8) Organize medical information so its up to date and easy to find.
9) Make sure legal documents are in order.
10) Give yourself credit for doing the best you can in one of the toughest jobs there is.

The Wyandotte/Leavenworth Area Agency on Aging administers a Caregiver Program designed for respite. If you find yourself thrust into the role of a caregiver, you may contact the Area Agency on Aging at 913-573-8531 for that break you need.
A WELL-AGED MIND

Maintaining Your Cognitive Health

Getting older can bring many changes, both physically and mentally. Even when you’re healthy, your brain and body start slowing down. Maintaining your cognitive health—the ability to clearly think, learn and remember—is important for your overall well-being.

Many things influence cognitive health. Your genes, lifestyle and environment can all impact your thinking skills and ability to perform everyday tasks.

It’s common to experience some decline in cognitive function as you get older. That many mean occasionally losing things, forgetting words or briefly forgetting what day it is. Or you may notice that it takes longer to learn new things. Such symptoms don’t necessarily mean that you’re developing Alzheimer’s disease or another type of dementia.

Aging is bound to bring changes. But there are many things you can do to protect your cognitive health as you age. That includes knowing what puts your well-being at risk.

Staying Aware - It’s not only occasional memory problems that older adults are more likely to experience. Aging can bring other changes to the way the brain works. These changes can impact your ability to deal with complex social situations. That can put you at a higher risk of being scammed. Common scams targeting older adults include identity theft, risky or fake investments, charity scams and people posing as relatives in distress asking for money. Any adult can fall victim to these sorts of scams.

Reversing Changes - Many things can cause memory or other thinking problems. Depression, anxiety, an infection or even certain medications can cause cognitive changes. If you experience a sudden change in thinking, memory or mood, it may be caused by a new medication or a combination of your medications. Even common supplements or over-the-counter remedies can cause these types of interactions.

Building Brain Power - There are many things you can do to protect your brain as you age. Cognitive activity, physical activity and social engagement are associated with better cognitive functioning in older adulthood.

Managing your health conditions is also important. Controlling your blood pressure, for example, reduces the risk of having a small stroke (bleeding from blood vessels in the brain). Small strokes can cause temporary or permanent cognitive problems.

The aging brain can accumulate Alzheimer’s changes, but if you’re stimulating your brain and strengthening it like a muscle, you may be better able to tolerate those changes. Getting older can also bring cognitive advantages you might not know about. Older adults have greater verbal ability than younger adults. They’re better problem solvers and accumulate experiences that are very helpful.

Think about positive things that come with aging. It’s a great time to become engaged in meaningful activities, maintain connections to friends and family, develop new connections and be physically active. And in turn, all of these things can enhance one’s quality of life and one’s aging.

BEWARE OF A GROWING MEDICARE SCAM: “Free Genetic Testing”

Over the past few years, DNA tests have become popular across the country. Unfortunately unscrupulous people are taking advantage of the buzz around these tests to scam Medicare beneficiaries.

Scammers will often target Medicare beneficiaries through telemarketing calls, booths at public events, health fairs and door-to-door visits. They offer “free” genetic testing to help recipients avoid diseases or find the right medications.

The scammers claim that the testing is covered by Medicare, and therefore is free to the beneficiary. In reality, Medicare only covers genetic testing in limited situations and only when ordered by the beneficiary’s physician. If a company bills Medicare for genetic testing and Medicare denies the claim, the beneficiary could be responsible for the entire cost of the test - which often totals around $10,000.

In other cases, the scammers are simply trying to obtain Medicare numbers they can use to steal beneficiary’s medical identity or to fraudulently bill Medicare for services they did not provide. Such fraud hurts not just Medicare beneficiaries, but all American tax payers whose contributions keep Medicare strong.

The Administration for Community Living (ACL) offers this advice to avoid being scammed:

- Do not accept genetic testing services, including a cheek swab, from someone at a community event, local fair, farmer’s market or any other large event.
- Always be cautious about giving out your personal information, including your Medicare number.
- If you receive a genetic testing kit in the mail, don’t accept it unless it was ordered by your physician. Refuse the delivery or return it to the sender and keep a record of the sender’s name and the date you returned the items.
- Always review your Medicare Summary Notice or Explanation of Benefits. The words “gene analysis” or “molecular pathology” may indicate questionable genetic testing.

If you received a cheek swab or a screening that was not ordered by a trusted provider, or have any concerns about billing errors or possible fraud, contact your local Senior Medicare Patrol (SMP) by calling 1-800-432-3535.
