What do you want to see at the former Indian Springs Mall?

87	Dual use buildings with housing and local food options	2/12/2024 5:38 PM
88	More things for our children to do safely. A real community center would be nice. It's such a diverse area. We need to incorporate these businesses too. Like General Motors for instance. Why don't we have a tech program for skilled trades? Art programs. We need a lot!	2/12/2024 5:32 PM
89	Maybe do a community garden or some type of learning center modeled after the Anita Gorman center in KCMO	2/12/2024 5:18 PM
90	There is already a decent park and ride space there that doesn't get used, some commercial space for small businesses to use, a place for vendor fairs and all these food trucks popping up everywhere to gather, and a small outdoor concern venue all tied into the UG complex would be nice. Could probably get some private sponsorship on some of it through these small business initiatives. Housing is an issue as well, and the space is probably large enough to install a couple of decent high rise condominiums for white collar types working downtown. That's a perfect commute distance to downtown KCMO.	2/12/2024 5:12 PM
91	A more community-centric, family-friendly, well-built public space could redefine community spirits. This landmark would encourage outdoor related activities by creating tennis, basketball, and soccer courts, playground areas for younger children, and walking trails surrounded by nature. A pay-to-use community-pool could be a good idea as well. I would enjoy a well-maintained area like this in KCK instead of having to drive to Johnson county to find it. A good parking situation is a must. The parking lot could have carports with solar panels on top of them, protecting cars from the summer heat, winter snow, all while providing clean energy to power the lights around this public space.	2/12/2024 4:53 PM

Give us grocery stores so we don't have to drive to Johnson County to shop or eat or buy gas or have our hair done. Let the arts prosper. How about a community center and pool with with walking tracks, community gathering space, an art gallery, music recitals, basketball courts, cooking classes and other amenities that give people a reason to gather and make friends in this ethnically diverse city.	2/12/2024 11:28 AM

Because of that many turned to making use of their own skills, starting their own businesses. In turn if nurtured properly about owning a business, patenting, licensing and such it could make a full circle back into the community. Structures like amphitheaters and Ev charging stations feel disconnected and would go unused due to things like the economical crisis and general KCK culture. I agree that public transit should be a more central feature not only in this but in the whole community which is why a walkable community is so important. I think having walking trails/dog parks/scenery would bring more attraction to the area. Having some restaurants established in the area would definitely help and even having a grocery store local to the area would be tremendously great. Or even like a farmers market type of thing. 78	Personally, I envision the former Indian Springs site as being a place that is walkable and designed first and foremost for people--not for cars. I believe this site can be taken advantage of to create a dense-mixed-use community, which concurrently will benefit the city/county in regard to being an attraction for current and new residents, as well as visitors, and also a tax revenue generator. Picture: a plaza/public gathering place with a splash-pad or skating rink, surrounded by mixed-use, multi-story buildings with ground-floor stores and restaurants; then branching from this focal area, weaving streets with multi-story housing/townhomes with coffee shops/corner-stores dotting the community, and, throughout the site, weaving urban trails to	2/11/2024 5:45 AM bring the community an outlet to nature. With its neighboring proximity to a KCATA stop, this site has the potential to initiate transit-oriented development in the county. In short, I believe the city could benefit from such development that creates vibrant and sustainable communities, which this site has the potential for.

110	This area needs to be developed that will benefit the people in the area. It would be nice to have a gym, grocery store, community center. Even an entertainment center that will bring money into the inner city. We stay building around the inner city instead of where a good amount of your population is. We have older people in the area who doesn't want to or can't go to the legends to shop. Just start serving more of your people and not just the ones out towards the legends.	2/10/2024 3:20 AM
